spite of adequate margins and make it hard to distinguish entries readily in spite of their heavy black capitals. Many of the photographs are poorly reproduced.

The introductory article "Results of voting on leading educators in various fields" which appears in Presidents and professors is chiefly a subject list based on about 5,000 ballots in which university and college professors named "the person or persons in their educational field doing outstanding work during the school year 1934-35." To be of much value such a list should have more explanation than given here. Typographical and other errors were noted in it, such as the transposition of Professor Tenny Frank's name and the assignment of Professor Boyd Henry Bode of the State university of Ohio to that of Iowa. Of the first 53 names in the list, 45 were found not to have biographical sketches in either volume. John Dewey's name is missing.

Information was gathered by means of questionnaires filled out by the subjects themselves and, if allowance is made for typographical errors, is presumably reliable.

The binding does not appear strong enough to hold up under hard usage.

The first two editions of Who's who in American education were reviewed in The Subscription Books Bulletin, October 1930, and not recommended.

Because of its incompleteness, poor editing and other defects noted, this work cannot be recommended as satisfactory under either of its titles. In view of the scarcity of current educational biography, however, libraries which have a definite demand for that subject may feel its addition to be advisable.

CORRECTION

The Funk & Wagnalls New standard dictionary, containing a standard history of the world, in the two-volume duroyd-bound edition priced at $33, may be purchased by schools and libraries at 20% discount, according to the publishers. It was reviewed in The Subscription Books Bulletin for October 1934, p. 54.
